May Also ApplyTomorrow is "H-Day" in Bristol.
Do you know what "H-Day" means?It is the day on which it is planned to ascertain if additional housing is needed in the Bristol area.Housing questionnaires have been distributed to veterans organizations and to the industries. Those who are interested in obtaining living accommodations here and who have not been able to do so, are asked to so indicate.The questionnaires have been distributed to the Robert W. Bracken Post Home, American Legion, Chester W. Terchon Post, Veterans of Foreign Wars, Rohm & Haas, Kaiser Metal Products, Inc., Minnesota Mining and Manufacturing Co., Hunter-Wilson Co., and the Manhattan Soap Co.It is stated that, if the houses are built, that veterans will have the preference in renting them, but that the properties will also be available to other than veterans.The houses, if built, must be erected within one mile of the facilities of Bristol, but not necessarily within the borough limits.The housing development is to be a private enterprise, state sponsored.
The state to pay $72,000 representing 35 per cent of the cost. The private contractor to pay the other 65 percent which is to be amortized over a period of 28 years, after which he will become the owner of the properties. The state's grant is to be part of a $15,000,000 program to relieve housing scarcity in the state.The houses, it is stated, are to rent for $45 to $65 per month.Kenneth Reiss Marks

PLANS, PROPOSED
PENNSBURY SCHOOL*Project Will Accommodate 540 Pupils; Cost Put at $1,073,000*PLANS AWAIT AN O.K.*Both County Board and The State Must Approve
The PlansFALLSINGTON, Nov. 29 — Prominent educators in Bucks and Mercer counties met here yesterday to discuss proposed plans for a new Pennsbury high school building.
The discussion got underway at four o'clock and adjournment was taken for dinner which was served at the Penn Manor Club.Plans call for 28 classrooms, gymnasium capable of seating 858 persons, auditorium with a seating capacity of 620 and a cafeteria that will serve 300 students at a time.
The estimated cost is put at $1,073,000.A. E. Micklewright of Mickle-wright & Mountford, Trenton architects, said the new building will have facilities for 900 students. Currently there are approximately 540 pupils attending Pennsbury High School. Also included in the proposed building are art and music rooms, adequate laboratory space, a library, health room and teachers' rooms.Dr. Charles H. Boehm, Bucks County superintendent of schools, explained during the session why the Pennsbury Joint School Board was formed. He pointed out that prior to the merger the state had refused to support additional school space for Falls Township. Lower Makelfield Township and Yardley Borough individually. Therefore, he said, the three school districts merged in order to secure funds for the construction of a new high school. Since that time more than $43,000 has been realized from state aid.According to Medill Blair, regional superintendent of the Pennsylvania Schools, the joint school board already has secured a 30-acre tract of land at Makelfield and Swamp roads, Lower Makelfield township, as a site of the new building.The plans reviewed must go to the Bucks County Board of School Directors for approval, Blair said, and then the final approval must be secured from the Pennsylvania Department of Education.Presiding at the session was Norman W. Kratz, regional superintendent of Council Rock Schools, who was in charge of the afternoon session, and Dr. Boehm, who conducted the evening session.Among those who spoke were:
Dr. Paul Loser, supt. of Trenton,

MOVING CAMERA PROBES

According to newspaper accounts there were none of the headstands, fits of temper or other examples of exhibitionism to mar the opening of the New York Metropolitan Opera's sixty-fifth season. Most of the complaints from the ushers and table captains seem to revolve around the strange behavior of people who know they are in front of a television camera.

Those who viewed Richard Strauss' "Der Rosenkavalier" must have had the feeling that there were more television cameras than people at the Met. The big single eye probed the "Diamond Horseshoe," came in embarassing close to intimate conversations (it did not record what was said), roved up and down stairs, backstage, and out to the bar so often the audience felt parched.

It did a beautiful job on the opera itself. Thanks to telephoto lenses and excellent lighting, anybody favored with good reception had a better seat than those in the house. All told, a couple of million people could have seen the presentation if they so desired.
There is no accurate indication of the number that did.

After its second session with opera (it was first tried last year under very difficult conditions) it can be said that television is a most faithful recorder of sound and sense even working under limitations. Millions are now enjoying what was available to only a few thousand people as recently as two years ago.

Predictions as to the ultimate size of the television audience are hedged about by ands and ifs, but a significant development is that there is again an upsurge of demand for sets after a temporary lull. Although they don't sell for peanuts, some factories are behind in filling orders for them.

SUPER SELLING

From soap to schools, bathtubs to the brotherhood of man, the national advertising agencies are working overtime promoting American culture as diligently as they are boosting commerce.
This year, it is estimated, more than a hundred million dollars are being contributed by advertising agencies, newspapers and radio stations for public service campaigns.

Everyone has seen billboards trumpeting the message, "Find Yourself Through Faith, Come To Church This Week."
And soon there will be full-page newspaper ads telling why "Better Schools Make Better Communities." These are but a few of some 50 current promotions harnessing proven techniques in the fostering of ideals and values that cannot be purchased in a store.
Many of these campaigns are underwritten by business firms in cooperation with advertising men and media. This is their way of bringing home the point that the preservation of the free enterprise system depends on good citizenship as well as profits.

to visitors from December 16 to January 2.

The Putz, originated by the European Moravians, is a miniature reproduction of the nativity scene.
It is assembled from treasured age-old figures of wood and papier mache that are handed down from one generation to another.
Most householders have their own putz and invite strangers and friends alike to see it.
Many of the town's churches have special Christmas Eve vigils, with candlelight and carols. For youngsters, there are "love feasts" — a sort of juvenile kaffee klatch with Christmas hymns.

The dawn of Christmas Day is heralded by a trombone choir in the tower of the central Moravian Church.
Then come the traditional treats of cookies made from centuries-old recipes, and the lighting of beeswax candles made from 200-year-old molds in the nation's oldest drug store.

COUNCIL TAKES STEPS TO GET STATE

SPONSORED HOUSING DEVELOPMENT HERE;

PLAN TO CONDUCT AN "H-DAY" NOV. 30

Bristol Borough Council, last night, authorized the secretary to write a "letter of attitude," another step to bring to this area a state-sponsored housing program. The state to pay $72,000 representing 35 per cent of the cost and a private contractor putting up the other 65 per cent to be amortized over a period of 28 years, after which he will become the owner. The state's grant is to be part of a $15,000,000 program to relieve housing scarcity in the state.

John Smoyer, 3rd, sixth ward councilman, told council of a meeting held Sunday with representatives of the Chamber of Commerce, veterans groups and others interested. The project must be built either in Bristol or within one mile of the borough's utilities. A letter of "interest" was written August 13th by council. Mr. Smoyer stated that the Bristol Chamber of Commerce had agreed to make up all forms.

I. J. Hetherington said that plans are afoot to hold an "H-Day" in Bristol on November 30th. Forms will be distributed to manufacturing industries and veterans groups. Jacob C. Schmidt, Jr., has agreed to act as chairman of the veterans groups of the community. Veterans will be given preference but others may also file the required forms.

Mr. Smoyer said that the houses will be for those with incomes of from $2500 to $4500, and that the rentals will be $45 to $65 per month. There will be no obligation on the part of the borough and the project is not to be tax-free.

Council authorized the letter to be directed to the State Planning Board.
